CARD, BOARD, OR ROULETTE GAMES; INDOOR GAMES USING SMALL MOVING PLAYING BODIES; VIDEO GAMES; GAMES NOT OTHERWISE PROVIDED FOR

Definition statement

This place covers:

- Games including card games, board games, roulette games, indoor games using small moving playing bodies, e.g. pinball games, miscellaneous games, e.g. puzzle games.
- Video games, i.e. games using an electronically generated display having two or more dimensions, e.g. on a television screen, showing representations related to the game.

A63F 3/00

Board games; Raffle games (racing games, traffic games, or obstacle games characterised by figures moved by action of the players A63F 9/14)

Definition statement

This place covers:

- Board games, i.e. any game in which counters or "playing pieces" are placed, removed, or moved on a generally premarked surface or "game board" according to a set of rules. Examples of board games: game of goose, chess, scrabble(R).
- Raffle games, i.e. any game in which people obtain tickets, each ticket having the chance of winning a prize, e.g. lottery games. Examples of raffle games: lottery, lotto, bingo.

Relationships with other classification places

In a board game (A63F 3/00) the playing piece or counter is moved according to a set of rules (e.g. according to the face value of a dice), usually directly by the playing touching or handling the playing piece with the relevance put on the strategy, whereas in a game classified in A63F 7/00, the "moving playing body" is moving by itself, or moved by action of a physical force (gravity, projecting device, etc.), with the relevance put on the movement itself. Generally, when playing pieces are rolling on a board, the right group is A63F 7/00.

Special rules of classification

Generally, multiple classification is necessary: according to the type of game and according to the relevant technical characteristics. For example, a backgammon with illumination (DE202010009233U) is classified in both A63F 3/00151 and A63F 2003/00646.

For trivia board games (aspects of a question-and-answer game), add the Indexing Code A63F 9/18.

The board games are classified under A63F 3/00-A63F 3/04. The raffle games are classified under A63F 3/06-A63F 3/08.

The type of board game is classified under A63F 3/00003, or in A63F 3/02 (chess-like board games) or A63F 3/04 (educational board games).

The mechanical characteristics of the game board of any game type are classified under A63F 3/00173. The playing pieces of any game type are classified under A63F 3/00697. The electrical features of any game type are classified under A63F 3/00643.

The magnetic game boards of any type are classified in A63F 3/00694.

The accessories for game boards are classified under A63F 3/00895.

A63F 2003/00675

{Reed relay}

Glossary of terms

In this place, the following terms or expressions are used with the meaning indicated:

Reed relay	type of relay that uses an electromagnet to control one or more reed switches
Reed switch	electrical switch operated by an applied magnetic field. It consists of a pair of contacts on ferrous metal reeds in a hermetically sealed glass envelope. The contacts may be normally open, closing when a magnetic field is present, or normally closed and opening when a magnetic field is applied. The switch may be actuated by a coil, making a reed relay - or by bringing a magnet near to the switch. Once the magnet is pulled away from the switch, the reed switch will go back to its original position.

Synonyms and Keywords

In patent documents, the following words/expressions are often used as synonyms:

- "reed relay" (EN), "Reedkontakt", "Herkonkontakt", "Zungenrelais" (D) and "relai mouillé à anche", "relai à lame(s) vibrante(s)" (FR)

Special rules of classification

The board games having magnetic characteristics are not necessary all classified in A63F 3/00694. Only when the magnetic aspect is essential are these classifications given.

The magnetic aspects of board games are detailed in the following Indexing Codes, depending more precisely on the parts (parts of the board , supporting structure, playing pieces, accessories) between which a magnetic force is involved:

- A63F 2003/00391 magnetic connection between modules constituting the game board;
- A63F 2003/00927 magnetic instrument for handling a play piece (e.g. a wand for moving on or taking out a playing piece from the playing surface);
- A63F 2003/0093 magnetic instrument for handling a play piece, acting through a cover;
- A63F 2003/00545 magnetic connection between game board and supporting structure;
- A63F 2003/0063 magnetic connection between game board and playing pieces;

- A63F 2003/00738 magnetic connection amongst playing pieces (e.g. magnetically stackable playing pieces)
- A63F 2003/00662 and under for magnetic field sensors (with sub codes for "using inductance", "using hall effect" and "reed relay").
- possibly (but more rarely) Indexing Code A63F 3/00694 when the magnetic aspect is not essential and does not concern any connection where another code is already existing.

the "shogun"-type board games*, where the playing pieces comprise a changeable display by means of a (rotatable) magnet, are classified in the following group and Indexing Code in combination: A63F 2003/00826 and A63F 3/00694.

(*The "shogun" game comprises particular playing pieces which could change the value marked thereon depending on the field where they were landing on. The mechanism was a rotating magnet in the playing piece and hidden magnets in the board. Examples: DE2718756, EP1813323, US3406974, DE202006017774U).

A63F 3/062

{Bingo games, e.g. Bingo card games}

Definition statement

This place covers:

Games of chance in which each player has one or more cards (bingo cards or bingo game boards) printed with differently numbered squares on which to place markers when the respective numbers are drawn and announced by a caller. The first player to mark a complete row of numbers (or other winning pattern) is the winner. Examples of design of a bingo card:

1	21	32	57	74
14	36	44	63	81
3	29	47	69	90

B	I	N	G	O
1	29	42	57	70
9	25	43	58	75
13	20	FREE	48	61
7	21	38	49	65
12	16	39	59	68

Bingo cards optionally include a free indicia that is considered a match in any pattern including said free indicia.

Special rules of classification

Relevant details about the playing surface, the ball launcher, the ball itself, etc., not present in the classification scheme A63F 5/00 have to be classified in the scheme A63F 7/00.

Relevant details about sensors, electronic displays, etc. have to be classified under Indexing Codes A63F 9/24.

The groups A63F 5/0011 - A63F 5/0094 can be used in combination with any type of roulette games, that is also in combination with A63F 5/02 and A63F 5/04.

The devices for launching the ball of a roulette game are classified both under A63F 7/24 and in A63F 5/00.

The ball return mechanisms for roulette game are classified both in group A63F 5/00 and Indexing Code A63F 2007/345.

The devices using air jets for propelling the ball are classified both in A63F 2009/0087 and A63F 5/00.

A63F 5/0005

{Automatic roulette}

Definition statement

This place covers:

Roulette wheels in which the ball is automatically put in play.

Example of automatic roulette wheel:

An automatic roulette wheel in which at the end of a turn the wheel is accelerated and the ball is ejected from the pocket under centrifugal force and moves to the top of the ball track.

A63F 7/00

Indoor games using small moving playing bodies, e.g. balls, discs or blocks (board games, raffle games A63F 3/00; roulette games A63F 5/00; miniature bowling games A63D 3/00; bagatelle or similar games A63D 13/00; billiards, pocket billiards A63D 15/00)

Definition statement

This place covers:

Any game in which the main purpose is to roll or move small playing bodies, e.g. balls, marbles, discs or blocks, with some skill on a playing surface or rolling board.

Examples: Pinball games, marble games, tabletop football, rolling board games (ex.: US2009084863).

Relationships with other classification places

In some cases the borderline between these games (A63F 7/00) and some sport games (A63B) with balls is blurred. The games of this group do not aim, contrary to the sport games, to do physical activity.

Ball games in which players use a racket or wherein the ball bounces (like in table tennis games) are usually classified with the sport games (A63B).

Glossary of terms

In this place, the following terms or expressions are used with the meaning indicated:

Bagatelle	a modification of billiards played from one side in which the players' object is to strike the balls so that they, and perhaps other balls, shall fall into numbered holes or pockets that determine the score. Usually the bagatelle table has a rounded far end and a channel (essential) on the right hand side along which the balls are propelled and directed toward the pockets. The bagatelle requires the players standing at the square end of the table hitting the balls with a cue towards the holes at the other end.
-----------	---

Children's bagatelle	consist of marbles or balls that are shot onto a board which features areas fenced in by nails hammered into its surface. Each container scores different points depending upon the likelihood of a ball finishing in it (it is normally smaller than a bagatelle, table size).

A63F 7/0005

{played on a table, the ball or other playing body being rolled or slid from one side of the table in more than one direction or having more than one entering position on this same side, e.g. shuffle boards (goal posts per se A63F 7/305; miniature bowling-alleys A63D 3/00)}

- This group is an "application place" with respect to more functional places such as G06F, G06T or H04L.
- This group covers systems using computer and telecommunication technologies, which have been specially adapted for providing video games, as seen above.
- The scope of this group differs from that of G07F 17/32 which covers games providing financial rewards, played by electronic means, e.g. online poker, wagering or betting.
- The scope of this group also differs from that of main groups A63F 1/00 - A63F 11/00 which cover traditional games such as puzzles and card, board and dice games, and from that of A63F 9/24 which covers traditional games played by electronic means.
- The scope of this group differs from that of A63H, which covers toys.

Relationships with other classification places

- This group covers features of input devices specially adapted to video games. The corresponding function place for generic computer input devices is G06F 3/01- G06F 3/03.
- This group is in particular an application place for computer graphics. Animation and 3D graphics in general are covered by G06T 13/00 - G06T 19/00.
- This group is an application place, with respect to network games. Network services security are covered by H04L 63/00. Real-time data network services are covered by H04L 65/00. Data network services are covered by H04L 67/00.

Glossary of terms

In this place, the following terms or expressions are used with the meaning indicated:

Arcade machine	coin-operated entertainment device placed in a public venue.
Combo	a sequence of commands which has by design a greater effect when executed within a fixed time period than the mere succession of these commands.
Fiducial (marker)	real object used in the field of view of an imaging system which appears in the image produced, for use as a point of reference or a measure; the object can exist naturally in the scene (features of a face) or be added for the purpose of tracking (light-emitting diode, retro-reflective patch).
Force feedback	outputting forces, vibrations, and/or motions to the player to provide haptic feedback.
Game character	a game entity simulating a sentient being; the simulated being can be real, e.g. a person or an animal, or fictitious, e.g. a dragon or a speaking mirror.
Game client	game device connected to a game server through a network.
Game command	game-specific representation of the control signal, e.g. "pause" or "shoot" command.
Game console	consumer electronics system specially adapted to execute video games, offering reduced functions with respect to generic personal computers; it differs from arcade machines, which are also specially adapted for video games, but for commercial purposes.
Game content game asset	data required for the execution of the game program, e.g. bitmap images, three-dimensional models; the content is usually created by the game makers before the game release, but can also be created afterwards by the player, e.g. using level editors.

Game device	a data-processing apparatus enabling performing of the video game; the apparatus is connected to a display and input means, e.g. a controller or a mouse; it is either handheld or stationary; the device can be dedicated to the execution of game programs, e.g. a game console, an arcade game machine, a portable game machine, or a generic computer, e.g. a personal computer.
Game mode	distinct method of operation within the game program, usually relating to distinct game mechanics or goals, e.g. single player mode, multiplayer mode, capture the flag mode
Game model	abstract description of the game's inner workings and the possible interactions with the player, conditioning her tactical possibilities. The game model includes game parameters, such as the score, and the procedures and constraints governing their evolution. The game specification usually includes a model of some physical systems, be they fictitious or real. However, this model is not part of the game model if its sole purpose is to provide a realistic simulation.
Game object	a game entity simulating a thing (excluding sentient beings); the simulated thing can be real, e.g. a tennis ball, or fictitious, e.g. a laser gun.
Game parameter	a variable of the game model. Some variables of the game specification are not game parameters. For instance, the position of the virtual camera in a hand-to-hand fighting game is a game parameter if the position is chosen to be closer to the fighter with the lowest life meter. On the contrary, calculating a natural position of a fighter's elbow using the positions and orientations of his hands and shoulders, does not belong to the game model.
Game program	a computer readable program comprising instructions and data adapted to perform a video game when executed on a data-processing apparatus. To produce the video game program, the game designer communicates the game model in the game specifications to the developer team, who creates or adapts a game engine to implement the game model and optimize its implementation.
Game progress	any change in one of the game parameters (see game model)
Game scene	data describing the main virtual space used in the game's representation, e.g. describing a maze, a race circuit or the room where the player character is located, and its content. By extension, the image resulting from processing this data. The structure used for this data is usually a scene graph.
Game server	a data-processing apparatus or system connected to a network, not adapted for accepting directly player-generated signals, facilitating at least part of the execution of a video game (e.g. receiving inputs from the game clients, executing the game for the game clients and providing processed game information to the game clients for presentation to the player).
Player generated signal	an action made by the player to convey a decision, e.g. move circularly the arm, push a button with a finger.
Virtual camera	virtual viewpoint in world space with position and view direction to render an image of the game.

Synonyms and Keywords

In patent documents, the following abbreviations are often used:

3D	three-dimensional
AI	Artificial Intelligence
AR	Augmented Reality
D-pad	Directional pad
FOV	Field Of View
FPS	First Person Shooter (game)
HUD	Head-Up Display
LOD	Level Of Detail
MMORPG	Massively multiplayer online role-playing game
MOG	Multiplayer online game
MUD	Multi-User Dungeon
PC/NPC	Player Character/Non-Player Character
POV	Point Of View
PvP	Player versus Player (mode)
RPG	Role Playing Game
RTS	Real Time Strategy (game)
VR	Virtual Reality

In patent documents, the following words/expressions are often used with the meaning indicated:

Directional pad	set of neighbouring switches mounted on a game controller, usually thumb-operated, for indicating one direction, e.g. four-way digital cross
First person / third person mode	in a first person mode, the game is viewed from the point of view of the player character/object; in a third person mode, the game is viewed from above, below or aside of the player character/object
Game engine	core portion of the game program which masks the hardware platform and can be re-used when developing other game programs. The game engine components typically include a rendering engine, a physics engine, and frameworks for e.g. sound, scripting, animation, artificial intelligence, networking, streaming, memory management, threading, localization support, and scene graph management.
Game mechanics	the procedures and constraints expressed in the game model
Gamepad	handheld game controller, where the fingers (especially thumbs) are used to provide input; gamepads generally feature a set of action buttons handled with the right thumb and a direction controller handled with the left; the direction controller has traditionally been a four-way digital cross (see D-pad), but most modern controllers additionally (or as a substitute) feature an analog stick
Gameplay	the interaction process taking place between the player and the game
Joypad	a game controller or a directional pad

Nonlinear game	a game providing challenges that can be completed in a number of different sequences.
Physics engine	component of the game engine which provides an approximate simulation of physical systems in real-time
Pseudo-3D	simulation of a 3D environment using 2D techniques, such as the axonometric projection, parallax scrolling or skyboxing.
Rendering engine	component of the game engine which generates an image from a scene model
Open World, Sandbox	a game mode providing no explicit goal

Input arrangements for video game devices

Definition statement

This place covers:

Only input devices, which have been specially adapted for playing games.

Relationships with other classification places

Generic input devices such as a mouse which could also be used in a game are covered in the function place G06F 3/00.

References

A63F 13/21

characterised by their sensors, purposes or types

Definition statement

This place covers:

The use of commonplace sensors for unforeseen purposes, e.g. a pedal controlling the stand up/crouch position of a player-character, and devices using unforeseen sensors, e.g. electronic noses.

The subgroups under this group cover the physical parameters to be sensed and the means of detection.

A63F 13/211

using inertial sensors, e.g. accelerometers or gyroscopes

Definition statement

This place covers:

Input devices sensing acceleration, angular acceleration, velocity, angular velocity, position or orientation. A typical setup includes 3 mono-dimensional accelerometers, arranged perpendicularly, where the measured acceleration values are integrated to compute velocity and further, the device's position. The inertial sensor can be included in the game controller. The sensor can simply detect the motion in a given direction, without providing a measure of its intensity, e.g. to detect a push.

A63F 13/212

using sensors worn by the player, e.g. for measuring heart beat or leg activity

Definition statement

This place covers:

Wearable sensors which register a biosignal, such as electroencephalogram, or the motion of the player.

Communication between the input device and the game device is usually wireless, but can be wired.

comprising photodetecting means, e.g. cameras, photodiodes or infrared cells (A63F 13/219, A63F 13/655 take precedence)

Definition statement

This place covers:

Cameras and image sensors used in video games.

Typically, a camera is placed close to the main screen and registers the player's motions (see for example ref. 20 of the drawing). To ease tracking, fiducials such as objects with specific colours, shapes or reflectivity can be used. The output information is typically bi-dimensional. Alternatively, photodetecting means are included in the game controller and register the position of infrared light sources. Some imaging systems also provide depth information, using a range sensor, or using several cameras.

A63F 13/214

for locating contacts on a surface, e.g. floor mats or touch pads

Definition statement

This place covers:

Sensors for detecting a variation of a physical quantity measured at a location on a surface.

Devices using a plurality of discrete switches, e.g. dance mats.

Detecting the location of player's fingers by non-contact methods, e.g. reflected light.

A63F 13/2145

the surface being also a display device, e.g. touch screens

Definition statement

This place covers:

Direct interactions with the game display. Typically, the screen and the sensor are provided in one form-factor. However, the display can be composed of a projector and a projecting surface, also used to detect contact.

A63F 13/216

using geographical information, e.g. location of the game device or player using GPS

Definition statement

This place covers:

Use of geographical information obtained directly, e.g. by GPS, or indirectly, e.g. by triangulation of cellular telephone base stations.

Use of geographical information as a game input, or for a "treasure hunt", or as a game parameter, e.g. for matching the day/night cycle of the game to local time.

A63F 13/219

for aiming at specific areas on the display, e.g. light-guns

Definition statement

This place covers:

Use of photo-sensing cells to detect scanning lines on a monitor screen and using synchronization information to calculate the scan line position at the time of detection.

Use of photo-sensing cells to detect IR emitters placed nearby the display.

Definition statement

This place covers:

Communication between handheld game devices and a home game devices.

Communication between portable game devices and arcade machines.

Typically, the game devices are designed by the same company, which simplifies the data exchange. However, this group also covers communications between game devices with different hardware characteristics executing different Operating Systems.

A63F 13/327

using wireless networks, e.g. Wi-Fi® or piconet

Definition statement

This place covers:

Arrangements for locally connecting game devices using an air interface.

Connections based on standardized protocols are used such as WiFi® or Bluetooth®.

Connections based on game device specific protocols using for example the Infrared interface of hand-held devices.

A63F 13/352

involving special game server arrangements, e.g. regional servers connected to a national server or a plurality of servers managing partitions of the game world

Definition statement

This place covers:

Arrangements of hierarchies of game servers and players.

In the exemplary drawing below, references 10, 12, 14, 20, 22, 24 show the different layers in the server hierarchy with increasing geographical coverage.

A63F 13/40

Processing input control signals of video game devices, e.g. signals generated by the player or derived from the environment

Definition statement

This place covers:

Aspects of the use of input signals for facilitating the game interaction process.

Relationships with other classification places

Definition statement

This place covers:

The linear mapping of input signals into game commands.

The contextual, dynamic or non-linear mapping of signals received from an input switch or lever to game commands. For example, a fully inclined joystick might trigger a barrel roll instead of a simple turn:

A63F 13/422

automatically for the purpose of assisting the player, e.g. automatic braking in a driving game

Definition statement

This place covers:

The insertion of additional commands in the command sequence, i.e. to produce combos, and correcting the player's input to improve her accuracy.

A63F 13/424

A63F 13/426

involving on-screen location information, e.g. screen coordinates of an area at which the player is aiming with a light gun

Definition statement

This place covers:

Non-trivial mappings to game scene (e.g. use of 2D position for pointing to a game object in 3D environment), sequences of operations (e.g. drawing the trajectory of a sword on screen) and their recognition (e.g. symbol drawn to cast spell).

A63F 13/428

involving motion or position input signals, e.g. signals representing the rotation of an input controller or a player's arm motions sensed by accelerometers or gyroscopes

Definition statement

This place covers:

The processing of signals representing motion of the controller, e.g. swinging, as detected by accelerometers, to produce game commands.

The mapping of signals, e.g. from accelerometers, onto game object parameters.

Detection and recognition of sequences of operation, e.g. rotating a controller such as a lever for 720 degrees.

Noise resistant procedures.

involving branching, e.g. choosing one of several possible scenarios at a given point in time

Definition statement

This place covers:

The control of the game's narrative. A narrative structure can be implemented trivially as a sequence, but also as a tree or as a set of goals or tasks randomly assigned to NPC, to provide nonlinear gameplay.

The exemplary drawing below shows different branching points in the narrative (410,420,430) with the possible alternative segments.

A63F 13/49

Saving the game status; Pausing or ending the game

Definition statement

This place covers:

The storage of game data in internal or external memory. Both "save" and "pause" commands can be triggered by the player or automatically, e.g. pausing when receiving a phone call on the same device or auto-save feature.

Typically, a multiplayer game played over a network requires a protocol to pause or end the game. For instance, a player closes her own handheld apparatus. Prior to setting of a sleep mode, the game apparatus notifies all other game apparatuses of the interruption of the communication game, and then the game apparatus saves parameters necessary to execute a game main processing program to interrupt the execution of the game main processing program.

A63F 13/493

Resuming a game, e.g. after pausing, malfunction or power failure

Definition statement

This place covers:

Methods for retrieving game status and value of the game parameters as they were when the game was suspended

Methods for compensating discontinuities in memory or input when resuming. For instance, if a game using a controller with a tilt sensor is paused, then the change of position during pause will cause a discontinuity in the input coordinates.

A63F 13/497

Partially or entirely replaying previous game actions

Definition statement

This place covers:

Backward replay allowing the player to roll back to a previous state, e.g. before her character's death.

Forward replay allowing to display past game events.

Summary or recap techniques for shortening the replay.

Definition statement

This place covers:

The control of virtual cameras to facilitate the interactions between the player and the game.

The use of game variables for this control. For instance, in a fighting game, the camera can be placed closer to the fighter with the lowest life meter.

using two or more virtual cameras concurrently or sequentially, e.g. automatically switching between fixed virtual cameras when a character changes room or displaying a rear-mirror view in a car-driving game

Definition statement

This place covers:

Techniques that enable rendering of scenes from multiple perspectives.

In the exemplary drawing below, virtual cameras 401, 402 are placed on both sides of the wall, allowing rendering the scene from 2 perspectives (figure (b), (c))

A63F 13/5255

according to dedicated instructions from a player, e.g. using a secondary joystick to rotate the camera around a player's character

Definition statement

This place covers:

Direct control of the camera by the player to e.g. resolve projection ambiguities or occlusions. This control can be explicit, e.g. using a dedicated lever, or implicit. For instance, the orientation of the virtual camera can be set to the real orientation of a camera, to produce an augmented reality game. Alternatively, the head of the player can be tracked and the virtual viewpoint's position be updated accordingly, to produce an autostereoscopic display.

In the exemplary drawing below, the player can select view 160A or 160B using the input device 120.

A63F 13/5258

by dynamically adapting the position of the virtual camera to keep a game object or game character in its viewing frustum, e.g. for tracking a character or a ball

Definition statement

This place covers:

Methods for setting dynamical parameters of the virtual camera according to the dynamical parameters of a game object or character, allowing to implement cinematographic camera effects in video games.

Typically, speeds will be similar but the virtual camera may accelerate or decelerate according to a predefined game event. The relative height or angle of the virtual camera provides also the desired view of the game scene.

For example, if the player's car approaches an obstacle such as a tree or building, the viewpoint is positioned to quickly approach the player's car by increasing the moving speed.

In the further exemplary drawing below, virtual camera C tracks the virtual skier and changes its height and direction between C1 and C2 according to the game course.

A63F 13/53

involving additional visual information provided to the game scene, e.g. by overlay to simulate a head-up display [HUD] or displaying a laser sight in a shooting game

Definition statement

This place covers:

The display of game state variables which are not expressed in the game scene or of information to improve the game-player interaction. For instance, a magnified view of the target is displayed in a shooting game or a gauge for controlling the timing of the pitch in a baseball game.

A63F 13/533

A63F 13/5375

for graphically or textually suggesting an action, e.g. by displaying an arrow indicating a turn in a driving game

Definition statement

This place covers:

Techniques to help the player choosing her next command. Typically, a textual advice or a drawing of the game controller is overlaid. It is also used to provide information on a part of the game scene which is not visible on the screen, e.g. the position of the soccer team members on the field.

Hints as part of an in-game tutorial.

Indicators linked to an object in the scene.

Computing the motion of game characters with respect to other game characters, game objects or elements of the game scene, e.g. for simulating the behaviour of a group of virtual soldiers or for path finding

Definition statement

This place covers:

Methods for moving automatically non-player characters in the game scene according to the game progress. For example, virtual soldiers follow their leaders in a strategy games or virtual soccer characters are positioned to receive or intercept the ball.

Definition statement

In the first example below, characters 51 and 52 are moving automatically to a location according to player input on a touch screen. In the other example, non-player characters 11 and 12 are approaching automatically the player character.

A63F 13/577

using determination of contact between game characters or objects, e.g. to avoid collision between virtual racing cars

Definition statement

This place covers:

The determination if an object or character has entered the collision zone of other objects or characters.

The triggering of a corresponding game action if collision has occurred.

In the examples below, the results of collision determination are used to find out if the player character has broken a glass surface with a ball, has been hit by an arrow or could catch a flying object.

A63F 13/843

involving concurrently two or more players on the same game device, e.g. requiring the use of a plurality of controllers or of a specific view of game data for each player

Definition statement

This place covers:

Techniques for providing multiplayer games on the same game device by offering each player her own input device. Typically, a different view is displayed for each character on a different output area of the display device if they are too far one from the other, and a single view is used when the characters are close enough.

In the examples below, the screen is subdivided horizontally or vertically into two regions, allowing to render the game from the perspective of each of the two players.

A63F 13/87

- Use of storage medium before, during or after game execution, e.g. game loading from a disk

In the example below, a dedicated game cartridge storing a game program can be inserted into a game machine.

A63F 13/98

Accessories, i.e. detachable arrangements optional for the use of the video game device, e.g. grip supports of game controllers

Definition statement

This place covers:

Accessories, which are optional for playing the game (i.e. as opposed to input means, which are essential). They may add for example comfort or convenience to the game experience.

In the examples below, accessories are used to support a hand-held game device or a game controller.
